Class actions and collective proceedings involving securities and financial products are growing in volume and complexity.

Global asset recovery opportunities are booming

New legal pronouncements are frequent

Recovery options vary materially by country and case

Data management and portfolio monitoring needs have evolved

Claims filing is more complicated and labor intensive

Compliance with fiduciary obligations requires more specialized knowledge

THE RESULT

Billions of dollars are left on the table each year due to lack of information, missed filing opportunities, a “check the box” approach to claims preparation, and errors in complex claims processing.

WHY CHANGE. WHY NOW.

Keep up with the surge

The last decade has seen a rise in complicated class and collective actions based on alleged misstatements and financial wrongdoings affecting the price of the security or instrument. Events like data breaches, sexual harassment, and statements and conduct related to COVID-19 have also triggered actions.

Firms can expect continued growth in recovery opportunities, a rise in new legal theories supporting recovery, and an increased adoption of collective proceedings by jurisdictions globally. But, while there is much more opportunity for asset recovery in this dynamic space, there is also more on the line and more at risk.

Are you ready for what's next?

It streamlines and automates asset recovery—from monitoring and filing, to validation and payment distribution—so you can focus on your core business goals and objectives.

- Credit Default Swaps
- Euribor

- ISDAfix
- Foreign Exchange (FX) Contracts—USA and Canada
- LIBOR Impacted Securities

CASE IN POINT

In 2020, a large international financial institution devoted significant internal time and resources to file a claim that covered millions of shares of common stock.

Shortly thereafter, the investor engaged Broadridge to manage its portfolio monitoring and claims filing. Broadridge performed an audit of the claim and quickly determined that the client's common stock purchases did not result in a Recognized Loss pursuant to the Plan of Allocation. In addition, the claim was missing an entire class of derivative securities potentially eligible for payment in the settlement.

KEY TAKEAWAY

Engaging Broadridge's expertise earlier could have saved the client significant time and diversion of internal resources. Our identification of additional paths to recovery for the client further confirmed the client's decision to move from internal management to partnership with Broadridge.

CASE IN POINT

During a recent multi-billion-dollar settlement administration, Broadridge received a claim rejection on behalf of a client. The administrator found that the claim did not include sufficient supporting documentation in response to an audit request.

Our Global Class Action Services team responded quickly by requesting a judicial review of the claim. We prepared and submitted a detailed statement explaining the sufficiency of the supporting documentation and we had experts on call to present to the court, if necessary.

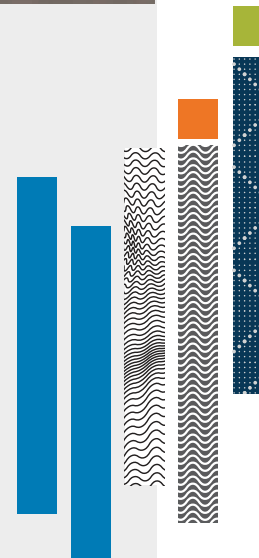

THE RESULT

The Broadridge Advocacy Model drove a reversal of the administrator's decision, revitalizing a potential multimillion dollar distribution. Court intervention was not required.

Client Advocates protect and promote your interests from start to finish

Each Broadridge client is assigned a class action expert to serve as their Broadridge Global Class Action Services Client Advocate. While your Client Advocate serves as the single point of oversight for your portfolio, he or she will draw on the experience of the entire Global Class Action Services team throughout the relationship. Our team members review and analyze your data, read and understand the requirements, and check the work of the claims administrator. In short, we dive deeper than other companies to ensure you and your funds, accounts, and clients receive every penny to which you or they are entitled.
